

Atari 7800 Label Variations

This Atari 7800 label list has been created by myself from personal scans and going to various sites on the internet. To update this list on my website, contact me at pdispenza@verizon.net. I will try and correct any mistakes and add any new info as I come across it. Any questions or comments, just contact me. I'm always on the Atari Age website as Philflound.

Rarity is going to be based on the label variation of the cartridge, not the game itself. There are many websites and guides that give the rarity of the carts, so it is just duplicate info you don't need. I am giving rarity 3 grades along with a (?) grade. There may be more than one grade for variations. There probably aren't too many variations for the 7800. Common of course will be the least expensive versions to find, Rare should be the most expensive. A (?) means I do not have enough data to determine how rare a label variation is, or if it even exists. My estimates are guesses. On the rarest games, a common will be given if only one label is known, or if more than one label is known, but are about equal in occurrence. No prices will be given here, but will be the sole judgment of each individual to determine.

A "*" after the entry means that I have a scan of this particular label variation available. Scans are now available on the videogamevariations.com website. If there is a particular variation with the cartridge itself in general, then I will show a scan of the carts. This will be something different about the mold itself, and I will try to describe in details the differences. PAL designations will be noted in the entry only if there is a PAL designation somewhere on the cartridge. That means that a cartridge could be PAL, even if there is no separate listing. Printing on the label or stickers on the cartridge should be the indicator that a cartridge is PAL..

Rarity: Common (C) – this would be found 6 out of 10 times
Uncommon (U) – this would be found 3 out of 10 times
Rare (R) – this would be found 1 out of 10 times, if that Unknown (?) – cannot determine the rarity

Abbreviations:

ML: = main label
EL: = end label
Cart: = the actual plastic cartridge
Typo: = typographical error
© = copyright
® = registered
™ = trademark

Manuals: A manual listing is what I've seen or had in my possession. If you have something that is not listed, please give me a scan of all pages if possible including covers. Page count listed does include covers and any unnumbered pages if they are numbered within the manual. Page count given will be individual pages, though the manual may not be stapled, and folds open to create one or two large pages, which I'll try to note. Any revisions will be noted with Rev #. Color given on the manual is for the front cover, most likely the outside background of any photos or drawings shown. I am not going to give rarities for this section, just listing for information.

Boxes: Boxes listed will be all versions that the cartridges came in, with a possibility that it was released in a bag instead of box. Copyright year will be listed first, along with the general color of the front of the box. Some boxes may have a Rev listed, usually found on the little flap at the top or bottom of the box. Variations of the box may be noted if there is something significantly different with a photo, sticker, or such. Printed and Made in countries will be listed. Most box sizes are standard with Atari games, but if any boxes have different sizes, it will be noted. Again, no rarities will be given for boxes, just informational purposes. If there is a different with the physical construction of a box, namely the flap, it will be noted in the entry. The Atari 2600 had mainly 3 types of flaps, described as follows. The Atari 7800 will probably not have any glued flap. We will keep these designations until we get a better idea of whether or not some of these flap styles do not exist. The first is standard opening of the box from the top flap, where the whole top flap tucks into the box. The bottom flap also tucks into the box. The second version is glued on both top and bottom, and there is a hang tag glued to the top of the back of the box. This little hang tag tucks into a slot on the top flap. The third version is a glued top flap that is similar to a cereal box with a tab. I'm going to call this the tab flap style box.

Printer and dates will be noted from the tiny flap if there is one as we did with the 2600. Any Rev #'s will be noted also from the tiny flap. If no Rev # is printed, that will be in the entry.

P - PAL format. These are non-US versions. A “p” is usually on the end label, and in some cases on the main label. Please note that if a label exists in both NTSC and PAL, but there is NO difference between the two labels, there will be only one listing, though we may note it as both NTSC and PAL in the description. Also, we are not going to note a cartridge as PAL unless it has a “p” somewhere on the label, or a “p” sticker denoting it as PAL. So, it's possible that a variation only exists in PAL format, but it won't be listed as such. Do not assume a listing as being NTSC.
